Sommario/riassunto

Gender Equality on a Grand Tour. Politics and Institutions – the Nordic Council, Sweden, Lithuania and Russia explores the politics around the establishment, development and transformation of gender equality institutions in the Nordic countries (on the example of Sweden), in the former communist countries east of the Baltic Sea region (the example of Lithuania) and in the northwestern part of Russia. The authors analyze the interplay between the internationalization and Europeanization of gender equality on the one hand and national and local contexts on the other. Gender Equality on a Grand Tour also is the first study to explore the role of one of the leading transnational actors in the region - the Nordic Council and the Nordic Council of Ministers - in gender equality institutionalization in the Baltic Sea region.

Nota di contenuto	Energy economic analysis (including population, gross domestic product, emissions) -- Energy flows in 2016 -- Energy and CO2 intensity of energy -- CO2 sustainability indicator -- CO2 emissions and scenario for meeting the 2-degree target -- Data from countries in the Americas -- Data from countries in the Middle East and South Asia -- Data from countries in East Asia and Oceania.
Sommario/riassunto	This volume analyses the energy industry for the following geographical units: America – divided into North America (Canada + USA) and Central and South America –, the Middle East and South Asia, East Asia and Oceania. The key energy-economic indicators for each region and country and their development, are illustrated in numerous graphs and energy flow diagrams. Based on this analysis, the author recommends a distribution of emission reductions necessary to limit climate change (for the 2°C and 1.5°C climate goals, with a perspective up to 2050). The continents covered in this volume collectively account for 77% of emissions. Europe + Eurasia and Africa will be addressed in volume I. Content: Energy industry analysis (population, energy supply, GDP and emissions) Updated energy flows Energy and CO2 intensity of energy, CO2 sustainability indicator CO2 emissions and scenarios for achieving the 2-degree and 1.5-degree goals Detailed data from countries in the Americas, the Middle East, and South Asia, as well as countries in East Asia and Oceania Target audience: Professionals and decision-makers in companies, politics, associations, and national as well as international institutions Lecturers and students in the fields of energy economics, energy and environmental engineering, and politics Interested laypersons The author: Professor emeritus Valentin Crastan, after practical and managerial roles in energy technology companies, was appointed as a professor of energy systems and control engineering at the Bern University of Applied Sciences, in Biel. Additionally, he served for nine years as the dean of the Department of Electrical and Communication Engineering. The translation was done with the help of artificial intelligence. A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content. .

Sommario/riassunto	As research continues to accumulate on the connections between media and crime, #Crime explores the impact of social media on the criminal legal system. It examines how media influences our perceptions of crime, the perpetration of crime, and the implementation of punishment, whilst emphasizing the significance of race, ethnicity, class, gender, and sexuality. It offers an accessible and in-depth examination of media and in each chapter there are case studies and examples from both legacy and new media, including discussions from Twitter that are being used to raise awareness of criminal legal issues. It also includes interviews with international scholars and practitioners from Australia, Belgium, and the United States to voice a range of global perspectives. This book speaks broadly to those interested in criminology, criminal justice, media and culture, sociology, and gender studies.
