Sommario/riassunto

Augmenter l'humain, devenir plus fort, plus rapide, plus intelligent, plus connecté, vivre plus vieux et en meilleure santé, repousser les limites de la souffrance et de la mort. Le développement technologique porte la promesse d'un être meilleur. Mais cet amour de l'homme du futur ne cache-t-il pas une haine de l'homme du présent, de ses limites et de sa finitude ? Quelles conceptions du corps et de l'esprit sont sous-tendues par les discours transhumanistes ? Donner des clés pour comprendre le rapport d'attraction-répulsion qu'entretient l'être humain avec les technologies qu'il crée, cristallisé autour de la notion d'homme augmenté, constitue l'objet de ce numéro des Essentiels d'Hermès.
