Sommario/riassunto	The health care sector, as a part of the economy, is extremely important in shaping the economic development of the country. Health needs play a fundamental role in healthcare policy. In order to satisfy them, it is necessary to effectively operate health care units, which should result in the provision of medical services of appropriate quality and time accepted by the patient. Conducting an economic analysis of the functioning of entities in the health care sector is extremely important and useful from the point of view of management decisions. On the other hand, the inclusion of this analysis in a broad, multi-aspect range may positively influence the decisions made, and in the longer term on shaping the state's health policy. The aim of this monograph was to assess the efficiency of selected hospitals in the city of ód according to the criteria concerning five areas of their activity: financial, patients and the market, internal processes, development and stakeholders, and identification of factors causing hospital indebtedness. What is more, a ranking, due to the efficiency of their functioning, was also constructed. // Co wpywa na zaduenie szpitali? Jakie czynniki determinuj jako i poziom wiadczonych w nich usug?
