1.	Record Nr.	UNINA9910957448003321
	Titolo	Workforce development politics : civic capacity and performance / / edited by Robert P. Giloth
	Pubbl/distr/stampa	Philadelphia, : Temple University Press, 2004
	ISBN	9786612701122
		9781282701120
		1282701126
		9781439904589
		1439904588
	Edizione	[1st ed.]
	Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (296 p.)
	Altri autori (Persone)	GilothRobert
	Disciplina	331.12/042/0973
	Soggetti	Hard-core unemployed - Government policy - United States
		Urban poor - Employment - Government policy - United States
		Job creation - Government policy - United States
		Occupational training - Government policy - United States
		Full employment policies - United States
		Community development, Urban - United States
		Economic development projects - United States
		Local government - United States
	Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
	Formato	Materiale a stampa
	Livello bibliografico	Monografia
	Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
	Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
	Nota di contenuto	Contents; Acknowledgments; 1. The ""Local"" in Workforce Development Politics: An Introduction; 2. The Politics of Workforce Development: Constructing a Performance Regime in Denver; 3. Ecologies of Workforce Development in Milwaukee; 4. Workforce Systems Change in a Politically Fragmented Environment; 5. Workforce Systems Change in Seattle; 6. Workforce Development Policy in the St. Louis Metropolitan Region: A Critical Overview and Assessment; 7. Comparative Local Workforce Politics in Six Cities: Theory and Action; 8. Poverty and the Workforce Challenge; About the Contributors; Index
	Sommario/riassunto	If 88% of Americans believe that education and training resources should be available to the jobless and more than two-thirds of employers have identified workforce and skills shortages as top priorities, why aren't we, as a society, able to provide that training in such a way that it leads to long-term economic security? This book looks at the politics of local and regional workforce development: the ways politicians and others concerned with the workforce systems have helped or hindered that process. Contributors examine the current systems that are in place in these cities and the potential