

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910959054403321
Autore	Rummel Erika <1942->
Titolo	The confessionalization of humanism in reformation Germany / / Erika Rummel
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York ; , : Oxford University Press, , 2023
ISBN	0-19-773870-2 1-280-83451-X 0-19-535033-2
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (220 pages)
Collana	Oxford studies in historical theology Oxford scholarship online
Disciplina	144/.0943 274.306
Soggetti	Humanism - Germany - History - 16th century Reformation - Germany Religion Germany Church history 16th century
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Previously issued in print: 2000.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Introduction; ONE: Humanists and Reformers as Allies: A Constructive Misunderstanding?; TWO: Humanists and Reformers as Foes: Humanistic Studies and Confessional Formation; THREE: No Room for Skeptics; FOUR: Humanists and Confessionalization: Fear, Equivocation, and Withdrawal; FIVE: The Nicodemism of Men of Letters; SIX: The Idea of Accommodation: From Humanism to Politics; Epilogue; Notes; Selected Bibliography; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Erika Rummel explores the effect of the Reformation on humanism in this study that turns the conventional debate upon its head. The author argues that both the Catholic Church and the Reform movement used humanistic ideas to further their own agendas.