Titolo	Grammatical constructions : back to the roots // edited by Mirjam Fried, Hans C. Boas
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Philadelphia, : J. Benjamins Pub. Co., 2005
ISBN	9786612156366 9781282156364 1282156365 9789027294074 9027294070
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	viii, 243 p
Collana	Constructional approaches to language, , 1573-594X ; ; v. 4
Altri autori (Persone)	FriedMirjam BoasHans Christian <1971->
Disciplina	415/.018
Soggetti	Construction grammar Language and languages - Grammars
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Based mostly on papers presented at the First International Conference on Construction Grammar, 2001.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Grammatical Constructions -- Editorial page -- Title page -- LCC data -- Table of contents -- Introduction -- Syntactic patterning -- Verbs and constructions -- Language variation and change -- References -- I. Syntactic patterning -- Definite null objects in (spoken) French -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Types of complement instantiation -- 3. Different types of interpretation of null complements -- 3.1. Indefinite Null-instantiation -- 3.2. Definite Null-instantiation -- 3.3. Free Null-instantiation -- 3.4. Summary -- 4. Definite null complements as ratified topics -- 4.1. Morphosyntactic factors -- 4.2. Semantic factors -- 4.3. Pragmatic factors -- 5. Syntactic and methodological implications -- Notes -- References -- From relativization to clause-linkage -- 1. Introduction -- 2. The need to posit two distinct grammatical constructions -- 2.1. The internally headed relativization (IHR) construction -- 2.2. The concessive construction -- 3. IHR vs. concessive clause-linkage -- 3.1. Structural comparison -- 3.2. Semantic comparison -- 3.3. Pragmatic comparison -- 4. From relativization to clause-linkage -- 4.1. The reanalysis hypothesis -- 4.2. Arguments for the reanalysis hypothesis -- 5. Conclusion -- Notes -- References -- Argument structure constructions and the argument-adjunct distinction -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Goldberg's analysis -- 3. Preliminary sketch of the maximal subconstructions -- 3.1. The Intended Recipient (maximal) construction -- 3.2. The Direct Recipient construction -- 3.3. The Modal Recipient construction -- 4. Representation of the RC constructions -- 4.1. The Abstract Recipient construction -- 4.2. The Direct Recipient construction -- 4.3. The Intended Recipient construction -- 4.4. The Modal Recipient construction -- 4.5. Lexical verbs unifying with the Modal RC -- 5. Inherent arguments, added arguments and adjuncts.

5.1. Caused-motion phenomena -- 5.2. Representing added path argument and setting adjunct ASCs -- 6. Conclusion -- Notes -- References -- II. Syntax and semantics of verbs -- The role of verb meaning in locative alternations -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Analysis of locative alternation -- 2.1. Linking mechanisms -- 2.2. L-meaning/P-meaning distinction -- 2.3. Load -- 3. Comparison with Goldberg (1995) -- 3.1. Fundamental similarities -- 3.2. Verb meanings as scene-based -- 4. Alternations that cannot be attributed to a single scene -- 4.1. Pack -- 4.2. Trim -- 4.3. Roll -- 4.4. Summary -- 5. The significance of verb meaning -- 6. Conclusion -- Notes -- References -- Verbal polysemy and Frame Semantics in Construction Grammar -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Previous studies -- 2.1. The locative alternation -- 2.2. Uses of brush -- 3. Goldberg's (1995, 2002) constructional approach -- 3.1. Goldberg's Construction Grammar framework -- 3.2. Problems with Goldberg's approach -- 4. An alternative constructional analysis -- 4.1. Verb meaning -- 4.2. The interaction between verb uses and constructions -- 4.3. Some solutions to the problems with previous analyses -- 4.4. Idiosyncrasy and generality -- 5. The semantics of the onto- and from-forms -- 6. Conclusion -- Notes -- References -- A constructional approach to mimetic verbs -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Unique properties of mimetic words -- 2.1. Phonological characteristics -- 2.2. Categorical characteristics -- 2.3. Semantic characteristics -- 3. A constructional analysis -- 4. Implications for the two approaches to multiple meaning -- 5. Conclusion -- Note -- References -- III. Language variation and change -- Integration, grammaticization, and constructional meaning -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Comparison -- 3. Basic notions of Cognitive Grammar -- 4. Degree of conceptual integration -- 5. Import for grammaticization.

6. Conclusion -- Notes -- References -- Constructions and variability -- 1. Introduction and aim -- 2. Variation, variability, and language change -- 3. Variability in Construction Grammar -- 4. which grammatical constructions have the status of elementary building blocks of human language. By exploring the analytic potential and applicability of this notion, the contributions illustrate some of the fundamental concerns of constructional research. These include issues of sentence structure in a model that rejects the autonomy of syntax; the contribution of Frame Semantics in establishing the relationship between syntactic patterning and the lexical meaning of verbs; and the challenge of capturing the dynamic and variable nature of grammatical structure in a systematic way. All the authors share a commitment to studying grammar in its use, which gives the book a rich empirical dimension that draws on authentic data from typologically diverse languages.
