Sommario/riassunto	This book, authored by Dr. Nirit Raichel, provides a comprehensive analysis of the Israeli education system, tracing its evolution from the late 19th century to the early 21st century. It explores the dynamic tension between centralization and decentralization, and the dichotomy between stated objectives and underlying practices. The book addresses pivotal changes in the system's structure, policy reforms, and the integration of diverse educational streams. It examines the impact of historical events on education, the role of non-formal education, and efforts to accommodate social diversity. Intended for educators, policymakers, and scholars, the book offers insights into the challenges and achievements of Israeli education, emphasizing the balance between tradition and innovation.
