| Sommario/riassunto      | Making European Space explores how future visions of Europe'sphysical space are being decisively shaped by transnational politics andpower struggles, which are being played out in new multi-level arenasof governance across the European Union. At stake are big ideas aboutmobility and friction, about relations between core and peripheralregions, and about the future Europe's cities and countryside. The bookbuilds a critical narrative of the emergence of a new discourse ofEurope as 'monotopia', revealing a very real project to shape Europeanspace in line with visions of high speed, frictionless mobility, thetransgression of borders, and the creation of city networks. Thenarrative explores in depth how the particular ideas of mobility andspace which underpin this discourse are being constructed in policymaking, and reflects on the legitimacy of these policy processes. Inparticular, it shows how spatial ideas are becoming embedded in the | everyday practices of the social and political organisation of space, in ways that make a frictionless Europe seem natural, and part of a common European territorial identity.
