

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910966552903321
Autore	Scheler Max <1874-1928.>
Titolo	Ressentiment / / Max Scheler ; translation, Lewis B. Coser, William W. Holdheim ; introduction, Manfred S. Frings
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Milwaukee, Wis., : Marquette University Press, 1994
ISBN	0-87462-441-X
Edizione	[New ed.]
Descrizione fisica	172 p
Collana	Marquette studies in philosophy ; ; #4
Altri autori (Persone)	FringsManfred S
Disciplina	179/.8
Soggetti	Resentment Ethics
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Text in English. Translation of: Das Ressentiment im Aufbau der Moralen. Enl. ed., 1915.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 145-167) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Lewis B. Coser William W. Holdheim -- Manfred S. Frings -- Prefatory Remarks -- On the Phenomenology and -- Sociology of -- and Moral Value Judgment -- Christian Morality and -- and Modern Humanitarian Love -- and Other Value Shifts in Modern Morality -- Notes -- Index.
Sommario/riassunto	This monograph constitutes a response to the criticisms of Christianity outlined in Nietzsche's Genealogy of Morals , in which Nietzsche argues that Christianity is a 'slave revolt' of the weak-an attempt by the impotent to bring down the vitality of the capable nobility. Scheler's response is multi-faceted but centers on Nietzsche's failure to understand the nature of Christian love. Christianity is not a destructive enterprise trying to bring everyone down to the same low level of its impotent faithful, who must put their trust in the next world because they can get nowhere in this one. Rather, it attempts constructively to bring everyone up to a new level of human flourishing. Christianity's preoccupation with the poor, weak, and marginalized stems from a recognition, through divine love, of the miracle of God's creation and infinite possibilities present even in them.