

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910968631603321
Autore	Nofziger Stacey
Titolo	Bullies, fights, and guns : testing self-control theory with juveniles // Stacey Nofziger
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York, : LFB Scholarly Pub., 2001
ISBN	1-280-36145-X 9786610361458 1-931202-74-5
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (185 p.)
Collana	Criminal justice
Disciplina	302.3/4
Soggetti	Children and violence - United States Deviant behavior - United States Self-control in children - United States Juvenile delinquency - United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 159-172) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Intro -- Table of Contents -- List of Tables -- List of Figures -- 1 Juvenile Intimidation, Violence and Self- Control -- 2 Data Collection and Sample Characteristics -- 3 Measuring the Key Concepts of Self- Control and Opportunity -- 4 Structural Equation Modeling: Predicting Intimidation and Violence with Self- Control Theory -- 5 Discussion and Conclusion -- Fayetteville Survey -- References -- Name and Subject Index.
Sommario/riassunto	Most examinations of juvenile violence are limited in the behaviors studied and the theories used. To address these issues Nofziger applies a test of Gottfredson and Hirschi's (1990) General Theory of Crime to a range of violent and intimidating acts. She explores bullying, fighting, and weapon related behaviors and tests the effects of self-control and opportunity with survey data on 1200 juveniles. The analysis indicates that greater self-control decreases intimidation and violence and that greater opportunity increases the same behaviors. The study supports self-control theory and suggests that lessened self-control and increased opportunity encourage the behaviors under investigation

