

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910970833303321
Autore	Tang Jie
Titolo	Managers and mandarins in contemporary China : the building of an international business alliance // Jie Tang
Pubbl/distr/stampa	London, : Routledge, 2005
ISBN	1-134-22669-1 1-134-22670-5 1-280-21707-3 9786610217076 0-203-01478-2
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (185 p.)
Collana	Routledge studies on the Chinese economy ; ; 16
Disciplina	658.0490951
Soggetti	Industrial management - China Construction industry - China - International cooperation Joint ventures - China Corporate culture - China Project management - China Conflict management - China
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [168]-171) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Managers and Mandarins in Contemporary China The building of an international business alliance; Copyright; Contents; List of illustrations; Preface; Part I; 1 Introduction; 2 Conflict, culture and construction; Part II; 3 Background to the project; 4 Tendering; 5 Foundations; 6 Erection; 7 Completion; Part III; 8 Conclusion; Appendix Organizations and individuals mentioned in the text; Bibliography; Index
Sommario/riassunto	This study explores the question as to whether the way in which Chinese management handles conflict is fundamentally different from elsewhere or much the same. It does so by examining in detail an international joint venture construction project, where managers rooted in contrasting business systems were brought together, and by showing how the project progressed over time, how various conflict situations arose, and how they were handled. In addition, the book provides an in-depth account of the inner workings of the Chinese business world, touching on issues such as:diff
