

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910971291003321
Autore	Thornton J. Mills <1943->
Titolo	Dividing lines : municipal politics and the struggle for civil rights in Montgomery, Birmingham, and Selma // J. Mills Thornton III
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Tuscaloosa, : University of Alabama Press, c2002
ISBN	0-8173-8098-1
Edizione	[1st ed.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (749 p.)
Disciplina	323.1/1960730761/09045 323.11960730761
Soggetti	Civil rights movements - Alabama - History - 20th century African Americans - Civil rights - Alabama Political culture - Alabama - History - 20th century Montgomery (Ala.) Politics and government 20th century Birmingham (Ala.) Politics and government 20th century Selma (Ala.) Politics and government 20th century
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [585]-696) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Acknowledgments; 1. Introduction; 2. Montgomery; 3. Birmingham; 4. Selma; 5. Aftermath; 6. Conclusion; Notes; Index
Sommario/riassunto	With this bold offering from two decades of research, J. Mills Thornton III presents the story of the civil rights movement from the perspective of community-municipal history at the grassroots level. Thornton demonstrates that the movement had powerful local sources in its three birth cities-Montgomery, Birmingham, and Selma. There, the arcane mechanisms of state and city governance and the missteps of municipal politicians and civic leaders-independent of emerging national trends in racial mores-led to the great swell of energy for change that became the civil rights movement. <