

| | |
|-------------------------|---|
| 1. Record Nr. | UNINA9910974134303321 |
| Autore | Markham Tim <1974-> |
| Titolo | The politics of war reporting : authority, authenticity and morality // Tim Markham |
| Pubbl/distr/stampa | Manchester ; New York, : Manchester University Press, : Distributed to the United States exclusively by Palgrave Macmillan, 2011 |
| ISBN | 9781847797995 1847797997 9781781702642 1781702640 9781847794246 1847794246 |
| Edizione | [1st ed.] |
| Descrizione fisica | 1 online resource (225 p.) |
| Classificazione | AP 13625 AP 26880 |
| Disciplina | 070.4/333 |
| Soggetti | War - Press coverage War - Press coverage - History War correspondents - Professional ethics |
| Lingua di pubblicazione | Inglese |
| Formato | Materiale a stampa |
| Livello bibliografico | Monografia |
| Note generali | Description based upon print version of record. |
| Nota di bibliografia | Includes bibliographical references and index. |
| Nota di contenuto | Copyright; Contents; 1. Introduction: why use political phenomenology to analyse war reporting?; 2. Theoretical preliminaries; 3. Methodological issues; 4. Practical mastery of authority, authenticity and disposition; 5. Journalistic ethics and moral authority: being right, knowing better; 6. How do audiences live journalism?; 7. New developments in the field: brave new world or plus ca change?; 8. Conclusion: implications for war reporting, journalism studies and political phenomenology; Appendix: interviewee profiles; Bibliography; Index |
| Sommario/riassunto | This book unpacks the aspects of the lives of war correspondents, exposing the principles of interaction and valorisation that usually go unacknowledged. This book asks why it is that the authoritative reporter increasingly needs to appear authentic, and that success depends not only on getting things right but being the right sort of | journalist. This depends on the uncalculating mastery of practices both before and during a journalist's career. Includes interview with war correspondents and others with an active stake in the field and combines them with the critical sociology of Pierre Bourdieu to construct a political phenomenology of war reporting, the power relations and unspoken rules underpinning the representation of conflict and suffering by the media.
