

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910999670203321
Autore	Helled Alon
Titolo	Adapting Nations : National Resilience Between Contemporary Statehood and Identity // by Alon Helled, Carlo Pala
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cham : , : Springer Nature Switzerland : , : Imprint : Palgrave Macmillan, , 2025
ISBN	3-031-84270-7
Edizione	[1st ed. 2025.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (XXIX, 212 p. 3 illus.)
Collana	Political Science and International Studies
Disciplina	320.3
Soggetti	Comparative government Political sociology Political science World politics Globalization Comparative Politics Political Sociology Political Theory Political History Governance and Government
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	Introduction. Putting National Resilience in Context -- Chapter 1. Why national resilience -- Chapter 2. The Resilience of Nation-States: Between Sociogenetic Fantasy and Juridico-political Institutionalization -- Chapter 3. The classifications and typologies of national resilience -- Chapter 4. Crisis, hysteresis and hybridization of national resilience -- Conclusions: Final Taughts.
Sommario/riassunto	"This book throws light on the complexities of the 'national'". —Aurélie Lacassagne, Université de Hearst, Canada "The authors have properly reinstated the concept of the nation to its intellectual importance." — David McCrone, University of Edinburgh, UK Nations adapt. Nations are resilient both within and outside the boundaries of statehood. Yet scholarship tends to downplay nationhood, as it focuses on the polity. As a consequence, the investigation of modern societies, though usually articulated around the nation-state model, falls into state-centrism, whilst neglecting the other side of the coin. This book initiates an interdisciplinary debate that encourages research in a field that has largely been overlooked in European social and political sciences. The analysis, offered by the authors, reinstates the concept of the 'nation' beyond the traditional, and somewhat dichotomous, schools of thought, hence neither judging the nation as a mere invention nor as a deterministic product of history. The book provides those interested in nationalism with new approaches to exploring national identity and its connection to statehood. By using concepts inspired by political science and sociology, namely habitus, survival unit, polity, hysteresis, and so forth, the different chapters of the volume revitalise the inquiry of the dimensions and features in which the nation and the identification they engender become tools of adaptation in relation to the transformative reality of our own contemporaneity. The authors thus contextualise the latter via the mid-range concept of national resilience at both meso- and macro-levels. Alon Helled is a postdoctoral fellow and adjunct lecturer in the History of International Relations at the University of Turin, Italy. He is also a teaching assistant on the History of Modern Israel and History of the Middle East courses at the University of Florence. Carlo Pala is a political scientist who has taught Political Science and Science of Public Administration at the University of Sassari, section of Nuoro, Department of Law, Italy. He is also an associate fellow at the interdisciplinary laboratory Arènes at the Institut d'Études Politiques (IEP), Rennes, France.
