Sommario/riassunto	Aux XVIe et XVIIe siècles, l'île de Malte, propriété de l'Espagne et confiée en 1530 à l'ordre militaro-religieux des Hospitaliers de Saint-Jean de Jérusalem, devient un lieu privilégié d'affrontements entre les rives chrétienne et musulmane de la Méditerranée. Après des épisodes militaires marquants (la razzia de 1551 et surtout le « Grand Siège » de 1565) ainsi que des fortifications intensives (notamment la construction de La Valette, cité utopique réputée imprenable), l'île incarne à la fin du XVIe siècle la frontière par excellence de la chrétienté face à l'Islam. Au siècle suivant, son épanouissement en tant qu'île-frontière est symbolisé par l'essor de la guerre de course, qui maintient l'affrontement avec les « Infidèles » tout en favorisant l'émergence, puis le développement de contacts commerciaux avec la rive ennemie pour l'écoulement des butins et des esclaves. Le développement multiforme des contacts humains et marchands est alors en permanence contrôlé et régulé par les autorités politiques et religieuses (l'Ordre, le Saint-Office, le clergé insulaire), soucieuses de maintenir intact le sentiment d'un contraste entre les civilisations que semblent effacer les associations commerciales qui transcendent les appartenances nationales ou confessionnelles. Ce singulier équilibre entre ouverture économique et clôture religieuse et mentale contribue alors à façonner une société originale, qui apparaît porteuse de la dualité inhérente aux frontières, c'est-à-dire à la fois ouverte, cosmopolite, et profondément hostile à toute différence religieuse.

The textbook offers an introduction to the elementary connection between social work and the human need for food. At present, hunger as a basic human need has become a secondary issue in social work, although the two are constitutively linked. The tasks of social work lie in the fulfilment of basic human needs, especially in its historical predecessors. For the first time, this introduction provides an overview of the multi-layered aspects of social work with regard to satisfying the need for hunger in socio-historical terms and in various constellations of social work, and also focuses on the abuse of power in educational contexts. Depending on social developments and the resulting life situations, hunger and food poverty are recurring major challenges and as such must be integrated into socio-educational thinking and reflected in action. This textbook provides contexts and suggestions for new approaches in this area. The author Dr. Christine Meyer is Professor of Social Work in the Life Course at the University of Vechta. This book is a translation of an original German edition. The translation was done with the help of artificial intelligence (machine translation by the service DeepL.com). A subsequent human revision was done primarily in terms of content, so that the book will read stylistically differently from a conventional translation.
