Sommario/riassunto	This book explores the collaborative process of creating a civic ordinance in Vilassar de Mar, Catalonia, through citizen juries. Authored by Joan Lluís Pérez Francesch and coordinated by Alfredo Ramírez Nárdiz, the work reflects on civility, transparency, and local participation within municipal governance. It documents the integration of community input, academic research, and municipal authority efforts to foster civic engagement and social harmony. The book emphasizes the importance of transparency, technological solutions, and the role of social media in active citizenship. It is intended for policymakers, academics, and community leaders seeking insights into participatory governance and civic education.
