Sommario/riassunto	This book chronicles the formation of the European Communities through the lives and efforts of key figures such as Jean Monnet, Robert Schuman, Konrad Adenauer, Alcide De Gasperi, and Paul-Henri Spaak, known as the 'Founding Fathers of Europe.' Based on exhaustive research including memoirs, press articles, public speeches, and historical archives, as well as interviews with individuals closely associated with these figures, the book provides insight into their personal values, relationships, agreements, and disagreements. It aims to explain the decisions that have shaped modern Europe and their impact on nearly 500 million Europeans today. The narrative is designed to be accessible and engaging, making it suitable for a wide audience interested in European history and political science.

Sommario/riassunto	"This book provides a nuanced analysis of rural change in Russia during the 2010s, a crucial and formative phase marked by the consolidation of giant agricultural companies, large land deals, soaring exports, and spectacular failures of investment projects. It contextualizes complex and often ambivalent empirical realities within historical and political-economic frameworks. Through extensive fieldwork, Alexander Vorbrugg gives rare insights into the operations of large agricultural companies and reveals how the deterioration of material infrastructures, social arrangements, government and local supports, and collective goods erode the conditions of rural inhabitants' well-being and agency. Vorbrugg introduces "dispersed dispossession," a concept that helps to relate gradual degradation to appropriation and agency. The concept captures losses that have been accumulated across Soviet, reform, and state-capitalist phases and stick to places, persons and potentialities. These losses are perpetuated and exploited by businesses and politicians and have profound implications for the conditions for resistance, shaping the range of conceivable alternatives. They are part of a history that is not fully past"-- Provided by
