Nota di contenuto	Intro -- Table of contents -- Preface -- Introducing new perspectives in interactional linguistic research -- 1. Interactional Linguistics and its emergence -- 2. The current state of IL -- 3. Defining characteristics of IL research -- 4. New perspectives in interactional linguistic research -- 5. The contributions to this edited volume -- 5.1 Studying linguistic resources in social interaction - "stretching the old linguistics to meet the challenge of talk-in-interaction" (Schegloff 1996:114) -- 5.2 Studying linguistic resources in embodied social interaction - "search with fresher eyes and ears" (Schegloff 1996:114) -- 5.3 Studying social interaction in institutional contexts and involving speakers with specific proficiencies - "search even farther [...] in the details of the talk with which we must [...] come to terms" (Schegloff 1996:114) -- 6. Conclusion -- References -- Part I Studying linguistic resources in social interaction -- What to do next -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Prior research and focus of the current study -- 3. Data and method -- 4. Analysis -- 4.1 ((Do) you) want me to -- 4.2 Should I -- 5. Summary and discussion -- Acknowledgements -- References -- Ordering a series of turn-initial particles -- 1. Introduction -- 2. A few remarks on earlier research, concepts, and method -- 2.1 Some theoretical background -- 2.2 Turn-initial position and turn-constructive units -- 2.3 Topic, activity framework, and overall structural organization -- 2.4 Data and method -- 3. The four particles -- 3.1 The first particle in the series -- 3.2 The last particle in the series -- 3.3 The second particle in the series -- 3.4 The third particle in the series -- 4. To conclude -- Acknowledgements -- References -- Turn continuation in yeah/no responding turns -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Multi-unit turn design and the TCU.

3. Glottalization and linking in speech and conversation -- 3.1 Glottalization -- 3.2 Linking -- 3.3 Glottalization and linking as interactional resources in German and French -- 4. Yeah/no responses followed by same-speaker talk -- 5. Conceptual approach, data, and methodology -- 6. Glottalization and linking of vowel-fronted TCUs in British English -- 6.1 General tendencies of glottalized and linked TCU boundaries in British English -- 6.2 Glottalization and linking of yeah/no responding turns -- 6.2.1 Action extensions -- 6.2.2 Action elaborations -- 6.2.3 New actions -- 7. Concluding discussion -- Acknowledgements -- References -- What do you understand by X? -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Points of departure for an Interactional Semantics -- 3. Methodological challenges of studying semantics in Interactional Linguistics -- 4. Two new approaches to Interactional Semantics -- 4.1 Meta-semantic practices -- 4.2 Interactional histories -- 5. Conclusion -- Funding -- Acknowledgements -- References -- Introducing the "Parallel European Corpus of Informal Interaction" (PECII) -- 1. Introduction -- 2. The Parallel European Corpus of Informal Interaction (PECII) -- 3. Using PECII -- 3.1 Sketching the analytic domain and locating a target phenomenon -- 3.2 Cross-situational comparison in a given language -- 3.3 Cross-linguistic comparison -- 4. Summary -- Funding -- References -- Part II Studying linguistic resources in embodied social interaction -- E anche-prefaced other-expansions in multi-person interaction -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Prior research -- 2.1 E anche -- 2.2 Gaze in interaction -- 2.3 Other-expansions -- 3. Data and methods -- 4. Displays of (dis)affiliation -- 4.1 Affiliating with an e anche-prefaced other-expansion -- 4.2 Disaffiliating with an e anche-prefaced other-expansion -- 5. Discussion and conclusion -- Funding -- Abbreviations.

References -- Verbal and bodily practices for addressing trouble associated with embodied moves in game play -- 1. Introduction -- 2. Literature review -- 2.1 Embodied actions as repair initiators -- 2.2 Problematic embodied actions addressed via embodied actions -- 2.3 Problematic embodied actions addressed verbally -- 2.4 Problematic embodied actions addressed with embodiment and talk -- 2.5 Game-playing interactions -- 2.6 Our focus -- 3. ## Sommario/riassunto

Many mentally ill people are the victims of stigma, which leads to additional suffering and humiliation. Negative stereotypes and prejudicial attitudes against them are often reinforced by their media representation as unpredictable, violent and dangerous. Hence the importance of the study of stigma as an explanatory construct of much that transpires in the management of the mentally ill in our societies. This book describes the experience of stigmatization at the level of the individual, and seeks to measure stigma and discrimination from the following perspectives: Self imposed st
