Sommario/riassunto	This book focuses on managing construction technology, exploring the interaction between people, processes, and products in the construction industry. Authored by experienced professionals, it provides insights into digital design, automation, robotics, artificial intelligence, data governance, and modular construction. The book addresses the challenges and opportunities of adopting technology to improve workflows, enhance efficiency, and deliver better outcomes in construction projects. It is intended for professionals in architecture, engineering, and construction (AEC) fields, offering actionable strategies for leveraging technology effectively in a rapidly evolving industry.
