

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9911063049203321
Autore	Hawkins Taylor Dee
Titolo	Future Generations Policy, Governance and Leadership : Ending 'Policrastination' / / by Taylor Dee Hawkins, Susan Harris Rimmer, Elise Stephenson, Matthew Day, Amie Furlong
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Singapore : , : Springer Nature Singapore : , : Imprint : Palgrave Macmillan, , 2026
ISBN	9789819541737
Edizione	[1st ed. 2026.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (216 pages)
Collana	Political Science and International Studies
Disciplina	320.3 320.6
Soggetti	Comparative government Political science Political planning Comparative Public Policy Governance and Government Policy Formulation
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	Chapter 1: Future Generations Policy -- Chapter 2: Defining the Path Forward -- Chapter 3: Why does this matter? The problem (and opportunity) we cannot ignore -- Chapter 4: A Journey of Rediscovery -- Chapter 5: A world already in motion -- Chapter 6: An ecosystem approach to Future Generations Policy -- Chapter 7: A framework for creating and implementing and evaluating Future Generations Policy in everyday policymaking -- Chapter 8: Australia's Moment to Lead -- Chapter 9: Real-World Stakes of Future Generations Policy -- Chapter 10: A new social contract for the future.
Sommario/riassunto	"For leaders, policymakers, campaigners, and citizens who believe we owe it to future generations to do better, this book is essential reading. It is rigorous, hopeful, and practical. Most importantly, it reminds us that while the challenges before us are immense, the power to change course is in our hands, if we have the courage to act with the long term in mind." –Sophie Howe, the Inaugural Future Generations

Commissioner for Wales, Cardiff, Wales This book explains how considering the impact on future generations drives better governance and policy outcomes and why it is time for Australia to embrace intergenerational fairness. We explore proposals to support intergenerational equity through policymaking, including emulating The Wellbeing of Future Generations Act adopted in Wales in 2015. A Welsh-style Act would embed the protection of future generations into Australian legislation. We consider what it would look like if we placed intergenerational justice at the forefront of our policy making, and what that would mean for all life on this continent. This is an urgent quest to reorient policymaking. Globally, we are in a state of polycrisis, emerging out of the pandemic to cascading climate crises, several intense regional conflicts and geostrategic competition. In response to this, a growing global movement representing the interests of future generations has emerged. Taylor Dee Hawkins is a social entrepreneur focused on future-driven leadership and social impact. She is the Managing Director of Foundations for Tomorrow, a non-profit dedicated to advancing the protection of future generations in Australia. Susan Harris Rimmer focuses on international human rights law in the Griffith Law School. Elise Stephenson is an award-winning researcher, strategist and entrepreneur, and the Deputy Director of the Global Institute for Women's Leadership, Australian National University. Matthew Day is a Research Assistant with the Griffith Law School and a Research Advisor for Foundations for Tomorrow. Amie Furlong is a policy and advocacy professional in government and non-profit sectors. She is the Research Lead of Foundations for Tomorrow.

---