Sommario/riassunto	The Journal of Critical Globalisation Studies is a peer-reviewed, open-access journal that invites contributors to challenge dominant ideas of globalisation and ideas that globalisation is a singular and even process, or that globalisation is somehow being reversed leading to a supposed resurgence in the traditional territorial nation-state. The aim of the journal is to understand globalisation from a variety of different and overlapping perspectives: economic, political, philosophical, cultural, geographical, social, and historical, amongst many others.
