

|                         |   |
|-------------------------|---|
| 1. Record Nr.           | UNISA996386315003316  |
| Titolo                  | A Leicester-shire frolick; or, The valiant cook-maid [[electronic resource] ] : Being a merry composed jest of five taylors that had been at work till their wages came to five pounds; likewise a merry conceited cook-maid that lived in the house, went to her master and desired him to lend her a horse, and she would venture her skill to take the 5-pound from these five taylors, without either sword or pistol, in a jesting way, to make her master some sport and to show her valour: her master loving mirth more then sadness, agreed to it: so a horse was saddled, and other things to disguise her self, because she might not be known: away she went (it being in the evening) and met them before they got home, with nothing in her hand but a black pudding, the faint-hearted taylors delivered her their money very quietly, for fear they should a been shot through with a black pudding, and what followed after is expressed in this following ditty. Tune is, Ragged and torn. With allowance |
| Pubbl/distr/stampa      | [London], : Printed for R. Burton ..., [1641-1674]  |
| Descrizione fisica      | 1 sheet ([1] p.) : ill. (woodcut)   |
| Soggetti                | Ballads, English - 17th centuryBroadside17th century.England  |
| Lingua di pubblicazione | Inglese   |
| Formato                 | Materiale a stampa  |
| Livello bibliografico   | Monografia  |
| Note generali           | Place of publication and suggested date of publication from Wing (2nd ed.).Imperfect: broadside cropped with some loss of print.Verses in black letter; chorus lines in roman.Printed in four columns with a woodcut at head of first column of text.Verse - "Ille tell you a pretty fine jest;"Reproduction of original in: Bodleian Library.  |
| Sommario/riassunto      | eebo-0014   |

