

1. Record Nr.	UNISA996389479403316
Autore	Hale Charles, Mr.
Titolo	A short account of the first motives and reasons for the mild lead-sheathing [[electronic resource]] : its excellency and [...]ose that use it; and the suggestions of its extraordinary eating the bolts and rudder-irons, prov'd to be false and groundless, upon old evidence newly produced and never till now printed [...] in the Milld Lead Company's reply to the late Navy-Boards report to the Lords of the Admiralty against it upon that account only, which reply was pen'd by Secretary Pepys, a person of [...]ers, and with the proceedings relating thereto amongst other things, printed in the year 1691 for publick satisfaction, and several papers since, published by Mr. Hale, [...]thed merchantmen into dock after their several voyages perform'd; asserting the goodness of their sheathing against the idle stories of the shipwrights and their friends, chall [...] their objections if they had any before they went out, while their sheathings might be view'd, and the truth appear to all the world; but none ever answer'd, as well knowing what they [...] d not bear a fair and open test
Pubbl/distr/stampa	[London, : s.n., 1700?]
Descrizione fisica	1 sheet ([1] p.)
Altri autori (Persone)	Pepys Samuel <1633-1703.>
Soggetti	Sheet-lead Lead industry and trade - England
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Author and imprint suggested by Wing. Imperfect: stained, tightly bound, and mutilated with loss of print. Reproduction of original in the British Library.
Sommario/riassunto	eebo-0018