

1. Record Nr.	UNISA996390560303316
Autore	Pett Peter, Sir, <1630-1699.>
Titolo	A discourse of the growth of England in populousness and trade since the Reformation [[electronic resource]] : of the clerical revenue, and the same asserted to be reasonable and necessary here : of the numbers of the people of England, founded on the poll bills, and the bishops survey, in the year 1676 : of the Bills of mortality, and political observations thereon : of the necessity of future publick taxes for the support of the government and our religion : of the advancement of the linen manufacture, with an account of the linen cloaths, canvas, linen-yarn, hemp, flax, and cordage, imported into the port of London ... from Mich. 1689 : with various political remarks and calculations relating to most parts of Christendom : shewing likewise from natural causes the impossibility of the advancement of popery (and consequently the folly of those that attempt to restore it) in England : with some observations on the Jesuites principles savouring fraud or calumny : therein also is largely discuss'd that papal tenet of the lawfulness of burning heretical cities : by way of letter to a person of honour
Pubbl/distr/stampa	London, : Printed, and are to be sold by Randall Taylor ..., 1689
Descrizione fisica	[2], 287 p
Soggetti	Economics - England - History Taxation - England Linen - England
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Reissue of the first part of The happy future state of England, first published in 1687, without the preface and index. cf. BM. Reproduction of original in Huntington Library.
Sommario/riassunto	eebo-0113