

1. Record Nr.	UNISA996391280903316
Autore	Wodroephe John
Titolo	The marrow of the French tongue [[electronic resource]] : Containing 1. Rules for the true pronounciation of euery letter as it is written or spoken. 2. An exact grammar, containing the nine parts of speech of the French tongue. 3. Dialogues in French and English, fitted to all kind of discourse for courtiers, citizens, or countrymen, in their affaires at home, or traueelling abroad. With variety of other helpes to the learner, as phrases, letters missiue, sentences, prouerbs, theames, &c. in both languages. So exactly collected and compiled by the great paines and industry of M. Iohn Wodroephe, that the meanest capacity either French or Englishman, that can but reade, may in a short time by his owne industry without the helpe of any teacher attaine to the perfection of both languages. Ce livre est aussi utile pour le Francois d'apprendre l'anglois, que pour l'Anglois d'apprendre le francois
Pubbl/distr/stampa	London, : Printed [by Miles Flesher] for Richard Meighen, at the signe of the Leg in the Strand, and in Saint Dunstans Churchyard in Fleetstreet, 1625
Edizione	[The second edition: reviewed and purged of much grosse English, and diuers errors committed in the former edition printed at Dort.]
Descrizione fisica	[4], 340, [4] p
Altri autori (Persone)	StirlingWilliam Alexander, Earl of, <1567 or 8-1640.>
Soggetti	French language - English
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Originally published in 1623 as: The spared houres of a souldier in his travels. Printer's name from STC. Pages 265-281 contain the first hour of "Doomes-Day" by William Alexander, Earl of Stirling. The last leaf bears "A thanksgiving of the author unto God for his helpe in the finishing of this worke". Reproduction of the original in the British Library. Some print faded and show-through; some pages stained. Pages 220-275 from the Newberry Library copy filmed at end.

