

1. Record Nr.	UNISA996392026403316
Autore	Guillemeau Jacques <1550?-1613.>
Titolo	A worthy treatise of the eyes [[electronic resource]] : contayning the knowledge and cure of one hundred and thirtene diseases, incident vnto them: first gathered & written in French, by Iacques Guillemeau, chyrurgeon to the French King, and now translated into English, togeather with a profitable treatise of the scorbie; & another of the cancer by A.H. Also next to the treatise of the eies is adoiyned a work touching the preseruation of the sight, set forth by VV. Bailey. D. of Phisick
Pubbl/distr/stampa	[London], : Printed by Robert Waldegraue for Thomas Man and VVilliam Brome, [1587?]
Descrizione fisica	[312] p
Altri autori (Persone)	WeyerJohann <1515-1588.> TextorBenoit <16th cent.> HuntonAnthony
Soggetti	Scurvy Cancer
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	A translation by Anthony Hunton of: Guillemeau, Jacques. Traite des maladies de l'oeil . Includes "A discourse of the scorby", translated from "Medicarum observationum rararum" by Johann Weyer; and "Of the nature and diuers kindes of cancers or cankers", translated from "De cancri natura et curatione" by Benoit Textor; register is continuous throughout. Signatures: A-I ¹² chiK ¹² (-chiK12) K-M ¹² . Numerous errors in pagination; pagination deduced from signature collation. See Poynter, F.N.L. Notes on a late-sixteenth-century ophthalmic work in English. The Library , ser. 5, 2 (1947), p. 173-9. Imperfect; lacks dedication, table of contents, and treatise by W. Bailey. Reproduction of the original in Cambridge University Library.

