

1. Record Nr.	UNISA996393175503316
Titolo	The batchelor's triumph: or, The single-man's happiness [[electronic resource]] : A hen-peck'd husband's like a slave, who wears his masters fetters, whom each whisper scares; his thoughts are all to please his wife, not knows he other hell, then what her frowns disclose: what mad-men then will be such fools, when they without controul, may love and freedom sway. To the tune of, For what is man, &c. With allowance
Pubbl/distr/stampa	[London], : Printed for P. B[...] at the Golden-Ball, near the Hospital-gate in West-sm[ithfield], [1675?]
Descrizione fisica	1 sheet ([1] p.) : ill
Soggetti	Ballads, English - 17th century
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Verse: "For what is man confin'd ..." Place and date of publication suggested by Wing. Cf. Wing B263A which has initials in the imprint, and B263 which has the name "P. Brooksby." Imperfect: cropped, affecting imprint and text. Reproduction of original in the British Library.
Sommario/riassunto	eebo-0018