

1. Record Nr.	UNISA996394465503316
Autore	Musgrave John <fl. 1654.>
Titolo	The conscience pleading for its owne liberty [[electronic resource]] : being the summe of an excellent discourse, wherein is pathetically proved, both by Scripture and reason, how farre a free toleration of religion may be granted, and how farre not, as it now stands with the affaires of the state : humbly presented to his Excellency Sir Tho. Fairfax, and those generous spirits under his command // by John Musgrave .
Pubbl/distr/stampa	London printed, : [s.n.], 1647
Descrizione fisica	[8], 26 p
Altri autori (Persone)	BaudouinFrancois <1520-1573.> GrimestonEdward
Soggetti	Freedom of religion
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Running title: An old way newly found out for the prevention of sects and schisme. Caption title: A discovrse of Francis Bawvdvvine. "The 'excellent discourse,' which makes up the main body of the text, is quoted from p. 356-367 of Edward Grimestone's A generall historie of the Netherlands, 1609. Those pages present a speech, supposed to have been delivered by Franc̄ois Baudouin." -- NUC pre-1956 imprints. Reproduction of original in the Union Theological Seminary Library.
Sommario/riassunto	eebo-0160