This book constitutes the first volume of the first journal in the new LNCS Journal Subline, the Journal on Data Semantics. Publishing a journal in a book series might come as a surprise to customers, readers, and librarians, thus we would like to provide some background information and our motivation for introducing this new LNCS subline. As a consequence of the very tight interaction between the Lecture Notes in Computer Science series and the international computer science research and- development community, we receive quite a few proposals for new archive journals. From the successful launch of workshops or conferences and publication of their proceedings in the LNCS series, it might seem like a natural step to approach the publisher about launching a journal once this specific field has gained a certain level of maturity and stability. Each year we receive about a dozen such proposals and even more informal inquiries. Like other publishers, it has been our experience that launching a new journal and making it a long-term success is a hard job nowadays, due to a generally difficult market situation, and library budget restrictions in particular. Because many of the proceedings in LNCS, and especially many of the LNCS post proceedings, apply the same strict reviewing and selection criteria as established journals, we started discussing with proposers of new journals the alternative of devoting a few volumes in LNCS to their field, instead of going through the painful Sisyphean adventure of establishing a new journal on its own.
