

1. Record Nr.	UNISA996394985003316
Autore	Oldham John <1653-1683.>
Titolo	The claret-drinkers song; or, The good-fellows design [[electronic resource] ] : Being a pleasant new song to the times. Written by a person of quality. Wine the most powerfull'st of all things on earth, which stifles cares and sorrows in their birth: no treason in it harbors, nor can hate creep in where it bears sway, to hurt the state: though storms grow high, so wine is to be got, we are secure, their rage we value not: the Muses cherish'd up such nectar, sing eternal joy to him that loves his King. To the tune of, Let Cœsar [sic] live long
Pubbl/distr/stampa	[London], : Printed for J. Jordan, at the Angel in Guilt-spur-street, [1684?]
Descrizione fisica	1 sheet ([1] p.) : ill
Soggetti	Ballads, English - 17th century Drinking songs Wine
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Verse - "A pox of the fooling and plotting of late,". "A person of quality" = John Oldham; this is an edition of his "The clarret drinker's song", first published in 1680. Place of publication from and date conjectured by Wing. Reproduction of the original in the British Library.
Sommario/riassunto	eebo-0018