Titolo	A letter sent from the devises in Wiltshire to a friend in Salisbury [[electronic resource]] : Shewing the condition of the towne, the affections of the inhabitants, and the behaviour of Sir Edward Baynton whilst he was there. Written some weekes since, but now printed upon occasion of a late abuse in Salisbury, done by some Parliament plundring forces under the command of Hungerford and Fines who wander about the country, robbing and spoyling His Majesties good subjects. A true relation whereof is hereunto annexed, that other cities, townes, and countries, may endeavour to withstand these and the like rebels who aime at nothing more then the ruine and destruction of this famous and flourishing kingdome
