

1. Record Nr.	UNISA996395618903316
Titolo	Two-penny-worth of wit for a penny, or, The bad husband turn'd thrifty [[electronic resource]] : this man that wrought his own decay, and spent his money night and day, is turn'd so saving I do swear, there's few that with him can compare : and lives so civil in his ways, that all his neighbours give him praise, and does repent his wicked crime, and desires good fellows to turn in time : there's many a man runs himself clear out, when ale's in his head, then wit is out : to the tune of, Packingtons pound
Pubbl/distr/stampa	[London], : Printed for J. Deacon, at the Angel in Giltspur-street., [1685?]
Descrizione fisica	1 sheet ([1] p.) : ill
Soggetti	Drinking of alcoholic beverages - Economic aspects Ballads 17th century. England Broadsides 17th century. England
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Place and date of publication suggested by Wing (2nd ed.). First line: All company-keepers come hear what I say. Text is in 3 columns, with 3 woodcuts above the first 2. Reproduction of original in: National Library of Scotland--Crawford Collections.
Sommario/riassunto	eebo-0097