Titolo

Another extract of severall letters from Ireland, intimating their present state [[electronic resource] ] : wherein it appeares that if supplies of victuals and ammunition be presently sent, there is great hopes of suddenly reducing those rebels : with the reasons given at Dvblin against a cessation of armes with rebels and the oath lately made by the rebels ... : wherein futher appeares the falshood of a scandalous pamphlet letely set forth intituled An apologie made by an English officer of quality for leaving the Irish Wars, when no such officer appeares, and that no such thing was there ever intended as the seizing of the Parliaments shipps as hath been falsely divulged : wherein appears how free the Marquesse of Ormond is from those calumnies unworthily cast upon him by that pamphliteere : with several letters from Dublin shewing the Popes Nuntio ... : with a letter lately sent from the Lord Insiquin out of Munster ... : as also an exact relation of the good service of Sir Frederick Hammilton since the rebellion begun
