Sommario/riassunto	The EEM is a well established conference in Europe, which brings together international representatives from science, industry and politics from different fields to discuss a wide range of issues related to energy markets. These include not only topics concerning methodological aspects of modelling, such as mathematical formulations and solution approaches, but also those related to market design, regulatory and climate policies. Additionally, the conference offers a platform for engaging discussions related to policies and challenges in the energy sector. The conference is following the energy trends and will include new developments in the fields of Local Energy Communities and Energy Efficiency.
