Sommario/riassunto	IEEE ISORC was founded in 1998 (with its first meeting in Kyoto, Japan) to address research into the application of real time object oriented distributed technology Since then, ISORC has continually evolved to meet the latest challenges faced by researchers and practitioners in the real time domain, with an emphasis on object , component and service oriented systems and solutions In addition to the main conference, ISORC 20202 will organize a special session dedicated to posters and demos, where the objective is to allow participants to show prototypes, tools, simulators and systems, which demonstrate the applicability of real time computing to different applications.
