Sommario/riassunto

This book, edited by Heng Choon (Oliver) Chan and Rebecca W. Y. Wong, explores the complex relationship between animal abuse and interpersonal violence through a psycho-criminological lens. It serves as a comprehensive examination of how animal cruelty correlates with human violence, offering insights into theories and research findings. The work is structured to enhance understanding of these issues globally, promoting interdisciplinary collaboration. It is intended for scholars, professionals, and students in the fields of criminology, sociology, psychology, and law, aiming to inform policy and practice in addressing violence and mental health.
